

DEAD BEFORE HER BODY WAS BURNED

Veil Lifted From Sheatsley Furnace
Tragedy Just Enough to Make it
Even More Puzzling

DEATH FROM SUFFOCATION

Startling Revelation Made by Charles Long, Chemist who Analyzed
Woman's Remains

(By United Press)

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 22—The veil of mystery was lifted from the Sheatsley furnace tragedy today just enough to make the circumstances of her death even more puzzling.

The startling revelation that Mrs. Addie Sheatsley met death by strangulation or suffocation and that her body was not stuffed into the fire box until she had stopped breathing, was made to J. R. King, county prosecutor, late last night by Charles Long, the chemist who analyzed her charred remains.

The prosecutor was apparently stunned by this unexpected turn in the strange case to which he had given every minute of his time since Rev. C. V. Sheatsley announced the finding of his wife's body smoldering on a bed of coals in the Lutheran parsonage furnace last Monday night.

The chemist reported to King upon the prosecutor's return to Columbus near midnight from Canton where he had questioned relatives of the furnace victim in a fruitless attempt to find support for his belief that she was murdered.

"This is much worse than I had expected," King said after reading the report of the analysis. "I can only say that we will now redouble our efforts. Nothing will be spared to find a solution of this most baffling mystery."

The chemist report disclosed, he declared:

1—An intense congestion of the lungs such as might result from strangulation or suffocation.

2—Not a trace of carbon monoxide which surely would have been inhaled had Mrs. Sheatsley entered the furnace alive.

3—No trace of poison. (Clarence, the 16 year old son, had declared that a bottle of poison was missing from the bath room and a glass was found in the ashes of the furnace.)

4—No trace of ashes or fumes which might have been breathed into the lungs.

"I obtained three ounces of blood and submitted it to five different tests. In all of them the blood was shown to be positive normal."

Newspapermen here immediately communicated with Rev. Sheatsley, who with his four children, is staying with relatives at Paris, Ohio, where Mrs. Sheatsley was buried, the information which the report revealed.

SPECIAL VENIRE CALLED FOR TRIAL ON MONDAY

Thomas Robbins of Greensburg Will be Tried on Liquor Law Violation
Charge

SPECIAL JUDGE TO HEAR CASE

A special venire of 15 talesmen was ordered today for a case that is scheduled to be tried in the circuit court Monday, in which Thomas Robbins of Greensburg is charged with the illegal sale of liquor.

The suit was yemmed here from Decatur county, and a change of judge also taken, in which Fremont Miller of Franklin will be on the bench. Robbins is charged in four different cases on liquor law violations and he will be tried on one of these.

The extra panel of 15 jurors will be called late today, and the names as drawn consist of the following: William H. Redmond and Harlan Overleese, Anderson township; Charles Phillips, Posey; George Smalley and John McCoy, Rushville; John Heeb, Noble; Henry Schonert, Union; Frank Humphrey, Richland; Earl Sears, Center; Horace Glidden, Washington; Louis J. Newhouse, Center; Chester Mead, Orange; Chester Cross, Jackson; S. B. Anderson, Rushville and Raymond Brown, Rushville.

FURTHER EVIDENCE SOUGHT

District Attorney Seeks to Show
Conspiracy in Hawkins Trial

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 22—Following up the sensational revelations of the Jacqua affidavit with relentless cross examination of defense witnesses, District Attorney Elliott today sought further evidence of conspiracy among the defendants in the Hawkins mortgage Co., mail fraud case.

The Jacqua affidavit, a complete surprise to defense attorneys, was made by Frank Jacqua, former attorney for the Hawkins company and one of the 16 defendants in the trial.

It charged William M. Jones, Fairmount, Ind., and Mort Carter, Indianapolis, two other defendants, with deliberately "selling out" the Indiana Rural Credit Association to the Hawkins company, which, according to the government's evidence was practically insolvent at the time of the merger.

NOTED EDUCATORS WILL SPEAK HERE

To Appear on Program of Sixth
District Teachers Association
Meeting Here December 6

TWO GENERAL SESSIONS

Dr. E. L. Bryan, President of Ohio
University, Will Deliver The Two
Principal Addresses

Educators of note, some of them from outside Indiana, will have a part on the program at the annual meeting of the Sixth Indiana District Teachers association, which will be held here Saturday, December 6, E. B. Butler, principal of the Rushville high school, is president of the association.

Dr. E. B. Bryan, president of Ohio University, will speak at the morning and afternoon general sessions, which will be held in the Graham Annex auditorium, and all of the sectional meetings will be held in the Graham high school building.

Dr. Bryan's address at the general session in the morning, which begins at 10:45, will be upon the subject "The Unfinished Task," and the subject of his address at the afternoon general session, beginning at 1:30 will be "A Defensible Education."

Sectional meetings have been arranged for superintendents and administrators, science teachers, physical education, English, mathematics, practical arts, principals and deans, parent-teachers' association, social science, commercial, foreign language, music, fine arts, grade teachers (two sections), attendance officers, practical arts, junior high school.

A chairman and vice-chairman have been selected for each sectional meeting and speakers have been assigned to discuss subjects of interest to each. A round table discussion will follow in each sectional.

The teachers of each county in the district will meet as a unit at 10 a. m., following the group meetings, to select their representative on the executive committee. The executive committee thus elected will meet at 1:15 p. m. to elect officers of the association and determine upon the meeting place for 1925.

H. L. Smith, dean of the School of Education, Indiana university, and H. N. Sherwood of Franklin, state superintendent of public instruction, will address the superintendents and administrators section.

A. L. Trester of Anderson, permanent secretary of the Indiana High School Athletic association, will speak on "Inter-Relationship of Athletic and Physical Education," before the physical education section and John M. Swain, physical director in the Rushville schools, will lead the discussion.

Miss Mary Beeman, state supervisor of home economics, state department of public instruction, of Indianapolis, will speak before the practical arts section for women on the topic, "Current Problems of Home Economics, Instruction and Supervision."

Mrs. C. G. Derbyshire of Southport, Ind., state officer of the Indiana Parent-teachers' association, will address the parent-teachers' (Continued on Page Six)

Automobiles. Instead of Schooners, Will Be Filled On Old Hotel Site

Second Oldest Building in Rushville, Which Once Housed Tavern Where Red Liquor Flowed Freely, Gives Way to Gasoline Age. First Housed General Store Conducted by "Uncle" Joe Hamilton, Characterized as a "Straight Jacketed Presbyterian."

With the razing of the Grand Hotel building corner of Main and First streets, to give way for the modern Twentieth Century requirements—a gasoline filling station—another landmark of Rushville has passed into history.

The landmark, extending over a period of 85 years, was the second oldest building in Rushville, it is believed, and no other building had a history connected with it, such as the old hotel that is no more.

The building located diagonally across the street is the oldest, according to the old timers. The date of erection, 1825, is still visible, and it can celebrate its centennial next year. The structure is occupied by John Knecht, automobile dealer.

The Grand Hotel building, as it was commonly called, was built originally as the first general store that was to be found in this section of the state. Rushville was just a young settlement in those days, having been settled in 1822, and the building was erected when the town was only 17 years old.

The building was built by "Uncle" Joe Hamilton, the pioneer merchant of Rushville. He conducted the general store that was regarded as the most prosperous of any within a range of miles. He sold everything in the mercantile line.

The building was then only two stories, and as the town prospered it became necessary to have a town tavern, and the rooms upstairs were initiated into the hotel business, long before the Civil War.

From that early period until a few weeks ago, the building had housed a hotel, and in its earlier days was among the best for the travelling public. The "drummers" who made this territory were always glad of the opportunity to stay overnight with "Uncle" Joe.

"Uncle" Joe was characterized as a "straight jacketed Presbyterian," and would not permit any gambling or drinking in his tavern. In after years the hotel fell into hands other than the Presbyterian type of a citizen and if some of the more recent "residents" would think back a few years, they would no doubt recall the big games and carousing that took place in "Uncle" Joe's one-time well regulated tavern.

Uncle Joe did a flourishing business and in 1869, after the war, the hotel would not accommodate the business, and extensive remodeling was done. The front part of the building was torn down and it was built three full floors and an additional half story, with the rear end left unchanged from the time it was built.

The bricks for the most part in the new addition were laid in place by William Bainbridge of this city, and the original building was erected by his father.

Joseph Hamilton was born January 3, 1803, in Ireland and came to America in 1821. His wife also was a native of Ireland. He died soon after the building had been remodelled, on October 26, 1872. It is understood that he has a daughter living in Indianapolis. He and his wife are buried in East Hill cemetery.

After his death, the widow conducted the business for a time, but sold out and many changes were made in later years, with the general store giving away entirely to the hotel and eating house business, with the usual saloon and livery stable in connection.

A notorious gambling place was said to have existed for years in the hotel, with many big games lasting for days, taking place. Even when workmen were wrecking the building a few weeks ago, they would stop and pick up the small pieces of paper, thinking possible that a hundred dollar bill might have been carelessly discarded by some gambler in those olden days.

The hotel was last acquired in the early '90s by the late Pleasant A. Miller, who with his wife conducted a successful business, with a restaurant and dining room that could not be excelled. In more recent years Mr. Miller had retired from the hotel business and had leased the upstairs rooms for that purpose, and the down stairs lobby and dining room gave way to the growth of modern business—an automobile tire shop. The tire shop was a forerunner of the downfall of the building, because the modern age with the automobiles never permits a small thing like a hotel to stand in the way of a gasoline filling station.

First, the livery stable connected with the hotel, went out of business on account of automobiles, and this portion of the building was torn down several years ago.

Then prohibition dealt a death blow to the "high" life that had been so characteristic of the old tavern. The business had succumbed to the gasoline age.

JOSEPH HALL, 90 YEARS OLD, DIES AT MILROY

Was Probably Oldest Resident of
Anderson Township—Lived in
Same Place 73 Years

APOPLEXY IS CAUSE OF DEATH

Joseph Hall, probably the oldest resident of Anderson township, died Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock at his home north of Milroy, death being caused from a stroke of apoplexy.

The deceased was 90 years of age, and was born in Cincinnati. When 17 years of age he moved to this county and had resided on the farm north of Milroy since that time. He was a farmer by occupation.

He suffered the stroke only a few hours before his death, and the family and friends were greatly shocked by his sudden death.

He is survived by five children, Mrs. B. L. Foster of Rushville, Mrs. J. H. Pike of Richland township, Mrs. Chris King of near Milroy, Will Hall of north of Milroy and Miss Elsie Hall, who lived at home.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence in charge of the Rev. Guy Hamilton of Milroy, and interment will be made in the Milroy cemetery.

TO PROBE BRIBE REPORTS

Committee Named to Investigate
Metamora Case

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 22—The state department of public instruction today announced appointment of a committee to investigate alleged payment of bribes to A. M. Hannebaum, former trustee of Metamora, Franklin county, by two teachers in return for teaching contracts.

The committee is composed of L. N. Hines, president of the Indiana state normal, Clifford Funderburg, Huntington; and Mrs. Richard Edwards, Peru.

Acceptance of bribes by Hannebaum was exposed in a report of the state board of accounts.

MILROY MAN FINED

Albert May of Milroy was arrested Friday night in that place by Clyde Kitchen, captain of the Horse Thief Detective association, and placed in jail on a charge of intoxication. He was arraigned this morning before Justice Stech and pleaded guilty, receiving a fine of $1 and costs, which he paid.

UNION SERVICES AT NIGHT

Thanksgiving Sermon at First Presbyterian Church Thursday

The usual union Thanksgiving services will be held by the Protestant churches of Rushville next Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock, at the First Presbyterian church, and the sermon will be delivered by the Rev. John T. Seull, Jr., superintendent of the Connorsville district, Methodist Episcopal church.

This will be the first opportunity the people of Rushville have had to hear the district superintendent, who succeeded the Rev. John M. Walker in September, and it is expected that he will be given a large hearing.

Thanksgiving union services were formerly held on the morning of Thanksgiving day, but last year they were changed to evening. This year the same plan will be followed.

DINNERS CHEAPER ON THANKSGIVING

Rushville People Will Find Prices
for Thanksgiving Day Meal a Little Lower

AVERAGE MEAL AT $4.00

Canvass of Merchants Shows Turkeys Less, But of a Poor Quality
—Chickens Plentiful

The Thanksgiving Day meal for next Thursday, should cost the people of Rushville less money, than it has for the past few years, according to an inquiry made today of local merchants. A meal with turkey and all of the "trimmings" for six persons should not cost over $4.

Although the price of turkeys this year is lower than last year, there still remains the scarcity that has existed for several years around here, and the quality of the meat is not as good as it should be on account of the excessive dry summer, according to Walter Thomas of the Adams Produce company.

The local commission firm has received some turkeys for shipment, but the supply is below normal. The prevailing prices today were 38 cents a pound for New York dressed, or about 33 cents a pound on foot.

Those who are looking for the "next best" in turkey will find hens at 26 cents a pound and chickens at 25 cents on foot, while ducks were quoted today at 20 cents.

Rushville stores were preparing today to handle big quantities of chickens and ducks for the Thanksgiving Day trade, and of course the merchants in that line also were prepared to take orders for the gobblers.

Farmers in Rush county do not devote much attention to the raising of turkeys, and because of the vast amount of trouble that is necessary to raise a flock of them, most of those that are placed on the local market come from other places.

The hills of Franklin county raise many turkeys, because the farmers in many instances are not as busy with crops as they are here, and the local produce firm receives many turkeys from this section. Those that can be spared are shipped to the east, according to Mr. Thomas, and only a limited number is kept on hands to meet the local needs.

In a canvass of the local stores, prices were obtained on the probable cost of a meal for Thanksgiving Day and the essentials of an average meal, for six persons, figures up as follows:

Turkey, 7 pounds	$2.65
Oysters, pint	.35
Cranberries, pound	.15
Celery, bunch	.10
Sweet potatoes	.15
Pumpkin, can	.15
Bread, coffee, etc.	.45

Total $4.00
If chicken or duck is substituted for turkey, the cost will be materially reduced.

OPENS UP WAY TO ERECT MONUMENT

Dismissal of Law Suit Leaves Ira
W. Ayres Will Trustees Free to Proceed With Shaft

TO HONOR GEN. HACKLEMAN

Plan For Monument in Memory of
Only Indiana General Killed in
Civil War Can go on

Plans for the erection of a monument in honor of General P. A. Hackleman, the only Indiana Civil War General killed in action, will go forward soon, following the dismissal of a law suit this week in court against the expenditure of the money left for that purpose by the late Ira W. Ayres.

Mr. Ayres at his death left a will, bequeathing a sum of money that was to be placed in a bank to draw compound interest until it had reached a sum large enough to permit the erection of the shaft for that purpose.

The sum of money now available is nearly $5,000, and a board of trustees, headed by A. L. Gary, local attorney, was appointed by the terms of the will to carry out the plans of the deceased. The will was contested by his widow and the matter has been held up in court for two years, but the action was dismissed this week.

The county board of commissioners has long since granted permission to erect the monument in the northwest corner of the court house yard, and the trustees have also contracted with Myra Richards, a sculptress of Indianapolis, for $4,000 for the completion of the large bust of the late General Hackleman.

Miss Richards has made several trips here in recent months, and her part of the work of making the die for the final cast, has been completed, and she has been waiting on the action of the court case, before proceeding with the expensive part of the monument.

It will be necessary to expend the rest of the money for a base and for the purpose of completing the job of placing the shaft in position.

The board of trustees for the monument project have not made any definite plans of proceeding, but will probably wait until spring before beginning actual operations.

SHARK'S BITE FATAL TO CARTHAGE YOUNG MAN

Russell Winslow, 33, Dies Friday in San Juan, Porto Rico, From Effects of Being Bitten

TEACHING IN THE UNIVERSITY

Russell Winslow, age thirty-three years, former Carthage young man, died Friday afternoon in the Presbyterian hospital in San Juan, Porto Rico, according to a message received this morning by his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Charles S. Winslow, living southwest of Carthage.

His death was due to the effects of being bitten by a shark while in swimming. It is not known when he was attacked by a shark, as his parents had no information that he was ill until the death message arrived.

Mr. Winslow was head of the chemistry department of the University of Porto Rico at San Pedro, and had been in the position only three months. His wife, who survives, is head of the music department of Guilford college, in North Carolina.

Besides the parents and widow, the deceased is survived by four brothers, Ralph, Howard and Donald of Carthage and Ray of Indianapolis, and one sister, Mrs. E. H. Doherty of Chicago. The body will be brought to the home of the parents for funeral services and burial.

The Rev. Mr. Winslow is a minister in the Friends church, although he holds no regular charge, and is also president of the Gwynneville bank.

TO BE LAID TO REST MONDAY

Merion, Ohio, Nov. 22—The body of Mrs. Florence Kline Harding will be laid away beside the body of the late president, in a vault in the Marion cemetery, pending completion of the Harding Memorial, Monday afternoon.

Stone and Gravel Roads Expected To Survive Winter Without Breaks

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 22—Belief that stone and gravel roads in the state highway system will not cut to a degree to worry traffic during the winter freezes and next spring thaws, was expressed by John D. Williams, director, in the commission's traffic bulletin today.

This is due, Mr. Williams explained, to the great volume of work accomplished the past summer at spreading material, and to the fact that roads go into the winter perfectly dry. He recalled that last fall there were many heavy rains and that roads were soaked when freezing weather arrived. He was optimistic in the belief that state gravel and stone roads will go through this winter with practically no breaks in the road beds.

Following its policy to remove practically all detours on the system this winter, the bulletin announced removal of a detour between Perry and Sellersburg on No. 1; at a bridge a mile north of Montpelier on No. 13, and four run-arounds at bridge work now completed on No. 17 between Kendallville and Ligonier and just east of Waterloo.

Williams also announced that new pavement is now in use on No. 16 between Little Pigeon Creek and Gentryville, and that traffic is using new pavement for nearly two miles north of Hazelton on No. 10.

Surface conditions, detours, run-arounds, etc., on the system for the week of November 21-28 are as follows:

No. 1—Pavement in use from Indianapolis to a point 14 miles north of Kokomo, with a detour at bridge 7 miles north of Kokomo. Closed from Neads' Corner to Peru, detour marked. South of Indianapolis detour via Dudleytown between Seymour and Crothersville account construction.

No. 4—One mile of earth road between Dugger and Linton; detour over county road through Dugger in wet weather. Run-around at Bassett Creek 3 miles east of Sullivan, soft in rainy weather. Detour just west of Seymour account bridge construction.

No. 5—Construction between Logansport and West Baden, detour over State Roads 41 and 22.

No. 6—Pavement open between

New Bethel and Shelbyville with one short detour between Northwest of Indianapolis use pavement to 3.7 miles north of Lebanon, thence on short detour back to pavement. Detour 6-miles north of Lebanon to west through Thornton returning to No. 6 at 3 miles north of Thornton.

No. 7—Closed for about 5 miles west of Peru (portion overlapping No. 1 being paved) detour marked.

No. 10—Closed from Evansville north ½ mile account paving on each side of Little Pigeon Creek bridge. Detour marked, probably open Nov. 20. Closed between Princeton and Hazelton. Traffic can use White river bridge. Closed at 4 miles north of Veedersburg account paving, detour to east, returning to No. 10 at 7 miles south of Attica Bridge out 1 mile north of Marshall; detour is fair. Detour west at Attica through Williamsport account Wabash railroad bridge crossing. Detour east at 1 mile north of Carbondale account bridge construction.

No. 11—Roadside run-around at bridge out at ½ mile north of Road 17.

No. 12—Drive slow because of grading new fill at Fish Creek 4 miles south of Freedom.

No. 13—Detour around bridge construction just south of Bluffton. Roadside run-arounds at bridge projects between Ossian and Bluffton.

No. 14—Earth road from Leopold Junction to St. Croix is soft in wet weather.

No. 16—Use new pavement from Little Pigeon Creek to Gentryville. Detour over earth road at overhead railroad crossing project at Lincoln City. (New location not passable between Lincoln City and a point 4 miles west of St. Meinrad. Traffic between St. Meinrad and Dale use county gravel road. Construction between St. Meinrad and Leavenworth. (Avoid) Watch for blasting at wash-out 3 miles west of New Albany.

No. 22—Pavement between Indianapolis and Martinsville being used by traffic using three detours around bridge construction. South detour, north of Waverly, very narrow and dangerous. However, the majority of thru traffic continues using No. 12 in order not to lose time on detours. Construction south of Paoli should be avoided if possible. Run-around at bridge project south of Harrodsburg.

No. 24—New grade completed between Palmyra and Salem. Go via Fredericksburg or Martinsburg in wet weather. (New Albany and Louisville traffic go via Pekin and Martinsburg coming out on Road 5 at Greenville in wet weather.)

No. 25—New pavement open from Lagrange to Middlebury. Run-around at bridge construction 8 miles east of Angola.

No. 26—Short detour 2 miles southeast of Columbus open first week in December.

No. 27—Detour only fair around bridge out over Elkhart river 3 miles south of Goshen.

No. 28—Earth road between Sandy Hook and Rodgers; ferry at White river. Drive carefully at dangerous hill south of Newberry.

No. 32—Roadside run-around at one bridge between Spencer and Greencastle. Road closed 2 miles north of Fincastle. Run-around at bridge construction at Romney.

No. 33—Side detour account bridge construction between Veedersburg and Covington.

No. 39—Bridge run-around at foot of Bulltown Hill near Laurel.

No. 41—Being rebuilt as stone road. Traffic use new grade over Willow Valley hill except in wet weather, then use the old road.

Questions To Be Answered At St. Paul's M. E. Church

The last sermon in the popular series on "The Girl of Today" will be delivered Sunday evening at the St. Paul's church. The topic will be "The King's Daughter." In the prelude to the sermon the following questions will be answered.

Can a man who refused to forgive enter Heaven?

What is the meaning of the number 666 in the Book of Revelation?

Is it right to arrest men for playing poker when mothers and daughters play for prizes in their homes?

If the shoemaker sticks to his Bible, leaving politics to the politicians, business to the business men, society to society people, etc.?

Do you believe in hell? If so how would you teach that doctrine to a Sunday school class of boys?

Kingdom is Within:—Neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold the kingdom of God is within you. Luke 17: 21.

Prayer:—May we this day enthroned Thee, O God, most Merciful and Mighty, supreme in our lives that the Kingdom of God may be in us and abound.

Successful Negroes

Not long ago the entire white population in a small Georgia town turned out to honor the funeral of an old negro preacher who had endeared himself to the community by a life of unselfish service. That is one way that a black man, like a man of any other hue, can achieve recognition.

Material success is another way, sometimes still more effective. White men may not love a black man because he makes money, but it makes them respect him. This truth appears clearly in the case of the late Uncle Tom Mason, who rose from slavery to become the president of a prosperous bank in Fort Worth, Tex., and when he died the other day, left an estate worth a quarter of a million dollars.

There was a similar example recently in another southern city, when public attention was called to the career of a negro who had long owned and operated a prosperous hotel for white patrons. He had never put himself forward but had always given first-class service and taken a very useful part in the life of the community, and was appreciated accordingly.

This is along the line advocated strongly by Booker T. Washington. He always advised negroes to save money and acquire property. Then, he said, they would respect themselves and others would respect them.

More Shoes Worn

"In the cities and smaller towns," writes a business reviewer, "the demand for staple goods is about normal, but no existent, and luxuries and gew-gaws are neglected. The shoe industry is better, probably because people are riding less and walking more, and is the only line in which a distinct improvement is reported."

Attention is invited particularly to that last sentence. If it is really true that people once more are wearing out shoe leather faster than automobile tires, it is a remarkable reversal of the situation. And without any animus against the automobile, it may be said also that the change represents a notable gain in thrift and health, however temporary it may prove to be.

Let people buy and use motor cars by all means. They justify themselves to the great majority of buyers, in many ways. But any recurrence or continuance of the good old bipedal method of locomotion, latterly in danger of growing obsolete, is just so much to the good.

A Year Without a Summer

Farmers are warned by the long-distance forecasters that the winter of 1926-27 may duplicate the experience of 1816, which history records as a "year without a summer" when no crops were raised north of the Mason and Dixon line.

They also tell us that this winter is to be a period of low temperatures and that we should prepare for several weeks of extremely cold weather.

The weather man is in a position to become the director of our industrial activities, according to the gas

Age-Record, because he can predict the fuel requirements of the nation as far as two or three years in advance.

In the same way, he could regulate our crops, if farmers had dependence in him, but they lose faith when they read in the paper, "fair and moderate temperature tomorrow", and wake up to find the temperature below freezing and snow covering the ground.

A Perfect Gentleman

Lightning is a perfect gentleman, according to scientists, and will never strike a man when he's down. In a storm, persons lying flat on the ground are reasonably certain to escape death.

The possibilities are, experts estimate, that one standing directly under a storm cloud would be hit fifteen times in one hundred strokes, while one on the ground would be struck only once in a hundred strokes.

Lightning may observe Marquis of Queensbury rules but, as with matrimony, being struck once is sufficient for a lifetime, providing that the victim is able to survive the first shock.

Homer is all wrought up over the gambling or alleged gambling which has been going on there for some time, according to the reports which have reached Prosecutor Cheney. Mr. Cheney has made an investigation but says that he can not find the identity of the gamblers.

What had the appearance of being a big fire was caused by a cow knocking a lantern over and setting a small shed on fire on the back end of the lot owned by Miss Alice Norris in North Sexton street last night. The work of several men in that neighborhood together with the fire department confined the fire to that one building. C. W. Hinkle, the elevator man, lives in the property to which the cow shed belonged. His son had been feeding the cow about five o'clock and left the lantern in the barn. It is supposed the cow knocked the lantern down and set the hay and straw in the barn on fire.

HUNT'S DAILY LETTER

BY HARRY E. HUNT
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Down at the Washington navy yard is the wreck of an old smooth bore naval cannon, its muzzle shot away, which has seemed an object of reverence to an aged, slender, gray-haired man who has visited it from time to time.

Probably the visitor regarded these visits as occasions for counting again with an old pal.

For the gun was one of those mounted on the historic Confederate battleship Virginia, first of the ironclads, better known as the Merrimac, and the stoop-shouldered old man who fingered so fondly over it on his periodic visits was Captain Henry H. Merrimac, who commanded the gun crew which was serving it when a shot from the Monitor—the Union cheese-box on a raft—put it out of commission.

BUT today the battered old gun remains the sole survivor of that historic battle to be fought in the capital. For 18 months there had been no visit to the navy yard by the old officer.

And on Nov. 15 he died—the last of the officer personnel aboard the Merrimac in the first naval battle ever fought between ironclads.

With his death Washington lost one of the most colorful personalities of the "old days."

SCIENTIFIC study of the soul has been attempted by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, chief anthropologist of the Smithsonian Institution. And as a result of his scientific deductions to date, Dr. Hrdlicka is convinced that soul is not a quality of which the human race has a monopoly, but extends down through the whole scale of intelligent life, varying only in degree as the intelligence of the various species varies.

THOSE who have loved and lost, says Hrdlicka, "know the soul exists. It has been a faith beyond science. But when we come to actual knowledge of it, there is little to be said. "It is impossible to discover any definite time in the life of a human being, from conception to death, when a line can be drawn on one side of which there is no soul and on the other side of which there is soul."

"In the scale of life itself there is no definite point at which it can be said that the soul begins to exist."

"Whatever soul may be it must exist in proportion to mind throughout all nature."

HRDLICKA'S deductions are a result of a recent intensive study given to the work of attempting to establish beyond peradventure the evolutionary origin of the human race.

And in this attempt he claims, thereby directly challenging William Jennings Bryan, that the theory of evolution not only does not contradict or undermine religious teachings, but places them on a firmer surer foundation.

If Bryan would drop over to the museum and talk things over with us for half an hour without passion, we would present him with the evidence," Hrdlicka says. "If he has any evidence tending to disprove ours he will be conferring a great benefit on us by letting us know about it."

"Broadminded clergymen receive tolerantly the evidence of the descent of man. Unfortunately, they are not the militant ones, who preach against us without knowing what we have to say."

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S first visit west of the Alleghenies as president will be a trip to Chicago, early in December when he will make two addresses. The keynotes of these speeches are expected to be farm legislation and tax reduction, both of prime interest in the country's agricultural metropolises.

Charles Dawes, doubtless, will be at the head of the committee to make the president welcome.

A sawmill stood where the Pinnell-Tompkins Lumber company is now located, and was abandoned because of frequent high water.

Jim Dixon ran an elevator on the site where Harry Kramers packing house stands, and it was later used for a livery stable which burned down.

There was a livery stable where The Daily Republican building is now located.

Dave Small ran a book store in a little one-story building where Johnson's drug store is.

Dave Mason had a candy store on the site of the present Ninety-Nine Cent store.

Oliver Conde had a meat shop in a one-story frame building where Casady's dry goods store now stands.

William Carr ran a harness shop in a small wooden building that stood on the north half of the site occupied by the American National bank.

Jake Block had a clothing store on the northwest corner of what is now Main and Second streets.

The Lakin grocery store stood where Frank Wilson's clothing store is now located.

"Prof." Brown had a barber shop in a little frame building situated where the rear entrance to the American National bank building now is.

Theodore Abercrombie's tailor shop was in the room now used by the Dixon millinery store.

Richmond Beatty had a two-wheel dray, which tipped backwards and made loading and unloading easy.

The J. M. & I. depot stood west of the building now used by A. L. Stewart and son in the manufacture of farm implements.

Jim Glone ran a restaurant where Polk's hardware store is now located.

Joe Hamilton had a general store in what was then a one-story frame building on the site of the Grand hotel that was lately torn down.

The circus grounds were situated where Dr. Frank Green's residence now stands at the corner of Perkins and Third streets.

Mrs. Huddleson ran an orphan's home at the corner of Third and Julian streets where the Jim Brown property is now located.

The first Catholic church in Rushville stood where the city water and light plant is now. It was moved to Buena Vista Avenue and Third streets and is now used by John P. Frazee and Son as an office building.

The first opera house, called the Maury opera house, was in the Odd Fellows building, which burned last January.

Woolen mills stood between Morgan and Harrison streets along the river bank, where Clore's feed barn is now located.

Abe Bowen had a planing mill where the Maury company's building is now located.

The postoffice was in a small building in the yard of the property now owned by Mrs. Cora W. Dillon.

Moore's flour mill stood just east of the city water and light plant, which is now the site of an elevator.

SPICE-LAND BOYS LACKING GINGER

Lions Pass the Ball Like Lightning
and Hit the Basket With Great
Accuracy

SECOND STRING MEN PUT IN

Hold Visitors Last Four Minutes of
First Half, But Spiceland Breaks
Through Second Half

The Rushville high school basketball team continued their onward attack on the basket, when they trounced the Spiceland high school here Friday night, by the top heavy score of 66 to 25, permitting Spiceland to catch up with them in the last half in order to make the game more interesting.

The Lions displayed a game of passing and goal shooting that has never been equalled in past seasons by a Rushville squad, and more improvement is seen in each game.

The boys from the Land of Spice were fast enough, but they lacked the necessary amount of "ginger" to put across a victory and they could not get any place when Rushville would tighten their defense.

The Lions ran the score up, 27 to 7, in the first half, and then substituted an entire new team, and in the last four minutes of play in the first half the visitors were held without scoring.

In the second half the same five new players were given places, and they played for ten minutes, but Spiceland managed to break through for goals, and almost evened up with the locals, much to the delight of the spectators who wanted to force the regulars in order to win the game in a final sprint.

With the score 31 to 20, the regular five men went back in, and the Lions showed the same old fight and while they ran the score up to 66, the visitors could only manage to make five points, which gave them 25 all together.

Rushville started off in the game at a fast clip, scoring first from the field, then twice on fouls and again from the field, making six points before Spiceland got started. The score at the end of the first seven minutes was 9 to 2, and Spiceland called time out to look over the situation.

But with Lakin hitting a fast stride at the pivot position, he acted as a feeder for Newbold, Wainwright and McNamara, and the ball appeared to be educated as it was passed swiftly from player to player around the basket. The team work was excellent and showed a marked improvement over former games.

The basket shooting of the Rushville team surpasses any of years gone by. All team players have an eye for the net, and there is no individual point getter as each Lion contributes his share.

Miller at back guard is playing a game similar to the style of Havie Frazier who held down that post for several years, and when Miller is relieved by Readle, it shows that Coach Swain has broken in two men for the post that can be depended upon.

Newbold is showing more improvement in each game, and follows the ball up under the basket with the Em Headle style that has broken up many games. Lakin has shown up in the last two games, playing like a veteran center, and not only does he get the tip-off, but he also knows where the basket is located.

There is McNamara at floor guard

who this year is hitting his stride and playing the game from all angles just twice as good as he did in the past seasons, and that means a great deal because Mac always was a player that set the fast pace for the team.

Arbuckle and Wainwright are usually running mates with Newbold at forward, and these two members who graduated from last year's second team, are showing more improvement with each game, and have about won for themselves regular berths on the team. These two players are excellent on the under the basket shots, and Arbuckle especially has a fancy for hitting the basket from the side angles.

The team will now buckle down for the rest of the season, as most of the easy teams have been played, and Coach Swain will now point the squad for the games next week, when Shelbyville plays here Wednesday night, and Newcastle follows on Friday night.

CURTAIN DOWN ON INDIANA SEASON

Last Act of 1924 Hoosier Football
Drama Played Today When Old
Rivals Meet

INDIANA AT LAFAYETTE

Wabash and DePauw Have it Out at
Greencastle—Easy Win Foreseen
For Notre Dame

(By United Press)

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 22.—The last act of the 1924 Hoosier college football drama was played today. The curtain went down as bitter rivals met bitter rivals argued to have the last word.

The bitterest of all bitter rivals were Indiana and Purdue which met at Lafayette for the state championship—outside of Notre Dame.

Wabash and DePauw met to have it out at Greencastle.

The struggle for the year was just as good as over for Notre Dame when they got rid of their two-year nemesis in defeating Nebraska last week. About the only argument about the game between the Irish and Northwestern game at Chicago today was whether the Purple would hold their opponents to as low a score as did Nebraska.

Northwestern fans pointed out that they held the heavy Chicago lines from scoring a touchdown and that they can stop the Irish. The Purple team also is said to be in better condition than it was when it met the Maroons.

Northwestern has showed more speed this year than it ever had in the past.

Dopesters were expecting Purdue to come out on top in the game with Indiana. Attention of football fans was centered on this game today. Out of 24 games played by two teams since 1892 Purdue had won 12 and Indiana 9. Three of the scores were tied. Purdue has lost to Indiana the past four years but has a better record than the crimson during the season. Chicago won from Indiana by 23 points while it defeated Purdue by only 13. Northwestern defeated Indiana by 10 points while the Boilermakers were victorious over Northwestern by seven points.

The score of both Hoosier Tens were 21 to 7 in defeating Wabash. The Boilermakers defeated DePauw 36 to 0 while the Crimson defeated DePauw by 21 to 0. Indiana was the victor in the game with Ohio State while Purdue was the vanquished. It also won from Rose Poly with a higher score than did Purdue but it has defeat delivered by Louisiana that it cannot wipe from its record.

The Boilermakers were on the lookout for Salmi, Slat and Lober, the best of the Crimson ball-carriers and were prepared for them. The team has had two weeks to rest and have had time to let their men recover from injuries. Captain Claypool was still in a partially disabled condition and was not expected to be put into the game.

Wabash stacked up with a record for the season of 75 points ahead of DePauw, and, according to dopesters, had a better chance of winning that the latter team. The Tigers have lost all but one game while the little giants have won three. DePauw, however, has been getting better each week and promised a few surprises.

The Haskell Indians after a two weeks rest were in splendid condition when they met Butler on Irvin field here. Levi and Captain Carpenter were out with injuries, however every man on the Bull Dog team was in good condition but it was indicated Hal Griggs, who has just recovered from injuries would not be used.

GAME ON A NEUTRAL FLOOR

Carthage and Manilla to Play at
Arlington Tonight

The Carthage and Manilla high school basketball teams will meet tonight on a neutral floor in Arlington for their game, which was postponed from the Manilla floor last night. These two teams are bitter rivals, and it is expected that a large crowd will witness the game tonight.

Raleigh was without a regular scheduled game last night, and the alumni made up a team that played them, and the high school won out by a dozen points.

DIVIDE HONORS AT NEW SALEM

New Salem and Center Teams Both
Win Friday Night

The New Salem and Center high school basketball teams divided honors Friday night in games played at New Salem, and each contest was close, with the winner in doubt until the final shot.

In the big game of the evening, the Center boys downed the New Salem boys, 20 to 14, and this game was fast and exciting, with both teams playing on about even terms.

In the preliminary game, the New Salem girls had a narrow escape from defeat by the Center girls, but they managed to win out by two points, 22 to 20.

Pacific Coast Draw Boxers

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 22.—Restoration of boxing in California by the passage of an amendment making the sport legal after a long period of "four-round" amusement is sure to make conditions better for the boxer but it may play havoc with the sport in the East.

That is nothing to complain about, however, as the East seems to have right to the big boxing that has been confined to the east coast since the boxers ruined their own business and brought about the era of four-round bouts on the coast.

Perhaps it is all for the best, however, as the East seems to have tired of boxing and it is reasonable to assume that California will be interested in seeing some of the big bouts that failed to get a tumble in the East.

There are several reasons for the slump of interest in boxing around New York. Tex Rickard, who has been hard hit by the slack trade, blames "fighters who won't fight" for their business depression. Perhaps the failure of Rickard and other promoters to arrange attractive matches caused the New York sportsmen to turn to other sports for their amusement.

One fine match was arranged for last summer and it fell through. It was one of those "naturals" that needed no ballyhoo or exploiting to put over but it didn't go over. It was the Walker-Leonard match for the welterweight championship. Leonard was generally accused of running out of the hatch on the pretext of a broken hand, but the wise boys around Broadway claim that the ticket sale was a bust and that some other reason had to be found to call off the fight. The promoters hardly could have added to the burden of commercialism handicapping the sport by admitting that they couldn't make enough money out of the card.

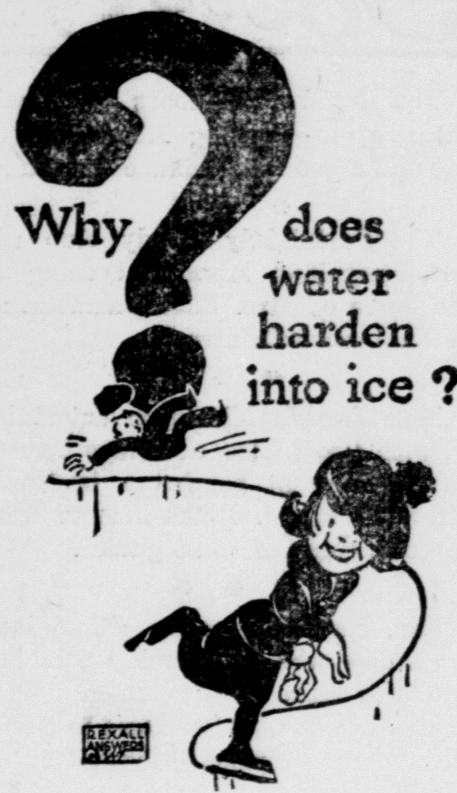

Things have happened since then that would indicate a desire on the part of the principals to create more interest in the contest. Walker and Leonard have been saying all kinds of nasty things about each other and they are reported to have been stopped by friends from engaging in a free-for-all on Broadway when they met one night recently.

It is still a natural match and the criticism that Leonard has seen fit to accept without protest is not hurting future prospects for the match. As Leo Flynn and Jimmy Johnston, an astute manager and a smart promoter, say:

"I don't care what you say about me as long as you say something and keep me in print."

Walker is in very bad with the New York Boxing Commission, for no good reason, and Leonard is causing the commissioners to lose patience with him.

Perhaps this match can be arranged by California promoters.

DEAD BEFORE HER BODY WAS BURNED

Veil Lifted From Sheatsley Furnace
Tragedy Just Enough to Make It
Even More Puzzling

DEATH FROM SUFFOCATION

Startling Revelation Made by Charles Long, Chemist who Analyzed
Woman's Remains

(By United Press)
Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 22.—The veil of mystery was lifted from the Sheatsley furnace tragedy today just enough to make the circumstances of her death even more puzzling.

The startling revelation that Mrs. Addie Sheatsley met death by strangulation or suffocation and that her body was not stuffed into the fire box until she had stopped breathing, was made to J. R. King, county prosecutor, late last night by Charles Long, the chemist who analyzed her charred remains.

The prosecutor was apparently stunned by this unexpected turn in the strange case to which he had given every minute of his time since Rev. C. V. Sheatsley announced the finding of his wife's body smoldering on a bed of coals in the Lutheran parsonage furnace last Monday night.

The chemist reported to King upon the prosecutor's return to Columbus near midnight from Canton where he had questioned relatives of the furnace victim in a fruitless attempt to find support for his belief that she was murdered.

"This is much worse than I had expected," King said after reading the report of the analysis. "I can only say that we will now redouble our efforts. Nothing will be spared to find a solution of this most baffling mystery."

The chemist report disclosed, he declared:

1—An intense congestion of the lungs such as might result from strangulation or suffocation.

2—Not a trace of carbon monoxide which surely would have been inhaled had Mrs. Sheatsley entered the furnace alive.

3—No trace of poison. (Clarence, the 16 year old son, had declared that a bottle of poison was missing from the bath room and a glass was found in the ashes of the furnace.)

4—No trace of ashes or fumes which might have been breathed into the lungs.

"I obtained three ounces of blood and submitted it to five different tests. In all of them the blood was shown to be positive normal."

Newspapermen here immediately communicated with Rev. Sheatsley, who with his four children, is staying with relatives at Paris, Ohio, where Mrs. Sheatsley was buried, the information which the report revealed.

SPECIAL VENIRE CALLED FOR TRIAL ON MONDAY

Thomas Robbins of Greensburg Will be Tried on Liquor Law Violation
Charge

SPECIAL JUDGE TO HEAR CASE

A special venire of 15 talesmen was ordered today for a case that is scheduled to be tried in the circuit court Monday, in which Thomas Robbins of Greensburg is charged with the illegal sale of liquor.

The suit was removed here from Decatur county, and a change of judge also taken, in which Freeman Miller of Franklin will be on the bench. Robbins is charged in four different cases on liquor law violations and he will be tried on one of these.

The extra panel of 15 jurors will be called late today, and the names as drawn consist of the following: William H. Redmond and Harlan Overlesse, Anderson township; Charles Phillips, Posey; George Smaller and John McCoy, Rushville; John Hech, Noble; Henry Schonert, Union; Frank Humphrey, Richland; Earl Sears, Center; Horace Glidden, Washington; Louis J. FURTHER EVIDENCE Sought

Conspiracy in Hawkins Trial

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 22.—Following up the sensational revelations of the Jacqua affidavit with relentless cross examination of defense witnesses, District Attorney Elliott today sought further evidence of conspiracy among the defendants in the Hawkins Mortgage Co., mail fraud case.

The Jacqua affidavit, a complete surprise to defense attorneys, was made by Frank Jacqua, former attorney for the Hawkins company and one of the 16 defendants in the trial.

It charged William M. Jones, Fairmount, Ind., and Mort Carter, Indianapolis, two other defendants, with deliberately "selling out" the Indiana Rural Credit Association to the Hawkins company, which, according to the government's evidence was practically insolvent at the time of the merger.

NOTED EDUCATORS WILL SPEAK HERE

To Appear on Program of Sixth
District Teachers Association
Meeting Here December 6

Dr. E. L. Bryan, President of Ohio
University, Will Deliver The Two
Principal Addresses

Educators of note, some of them from outside Indiana, will have a part on the program at the annual meeting of the Sixth Indiana District Teachers association, which will be held here Saturday, December 6. E. B. Butler, principal of the Rushville high school, is president of the association.

Dr. E. L. Bryan, president of Ohio University, will speak at the morning and afternoon general sessions, which will be held in the Graham Annex auditorium, and all of the sectional meetings will be held in the Graham high school building.

Dr. Bryan's address at the general session in the morning, which begins at 10:45, will be upon the subject "The Unfinished Task," and the subject of his address at the afternoon general session, beginning at 1:30 will be "A Defensible Education."

Sectional meetings have been arranged for superintendents and administrators, science teachers, physical education, English, mathematics, practical arts, principals and deans, parent-teachers' association, social science, commercial, foreign language, music, fine arts, grade teachers (two sections), attendance officers, practical arts, junior high school.

A chairman and vice-chairman have been selected for each sectional meeting and speakers have been assigned to discuss subjects of interest to each. A round table discussion will follow in each sectional.

The teachers of each county in the district will meet as a unit at 10 a. m. following the group meetings, to select their representative on the executive committee. The executive committee thus elected will meet at 1:15 p. m. to elect officers of the association and determine upon the meeting place for 1925.

H. L. Smith, dean of the School of Education, Indiana university, and H. N. Sherwood of Franklin, state superintendent of public instruction, will address the superintendents and administrators section.

A. L. Trester of Anderson, permanent secretary of the Indiana High School Athletic association, will speak on "Inter-Relationship of Athletic and Physical Education," before the physical education section and John M. Swain, physical director in the Rushville schools, will lead the discussion.

Miss Mary Beeman, state supervisor of home economics, state department of public instruction, of Indianapolis, will speak before the practical arts section for women on the topic, "Current Problems of Home Economics, Instruction and Supervision."

Mrs. C. G. Derbyshire of Southport, Ind., state officer of the Indiana Parent-teachers association, will address the parent-teachers' (Continued on Page Six)

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE GETTING AN EARLY START

Automobiles, Instead of Schooners, Will Be Filled On Old Hotel Site

Second Oldest Building in Rushville, Which Once Housed Tavern Where Red Liquor Flowed Freely, Gives Way to Gasoline Age. First Housed General Store Conducted by "Uncle" Joe Hamilton, Characterized as a "Straight Jacketed Presbyterian."

With the razing of the Grand Hotel building corner of Main and First streets, to give way for the modern Twentieth Century requirements—a gasoline filling station—another landmark of Rushville has passed into history.

The landmark, extending over a period of 85 years, was the second oldest building in Rushville, it is believed, and no other building had a history connected with it, such as the old hotel that is no more.

The building located diagonally across the street is the oldest, according to the old timers. The date of erection, 1825, is still visible, and it can celebrate its centennial next year. The structure is occupied by John Kuecht, automobile dealer.

The Grand Hotel building, as it was commonly called, was built originally as the first general store that was to be found in this section of the state. Rushville was just a young settlement in those days, having been settled in 1822, and the building was erected when the town was only 17 years old.

The building was built by "Uncle" Joe Hamilton, the pioneer merchant of Rushville. He conducted the general store that was regarded as the most prosperous of any within a range of miles. He sold everything in the mercantile line.

The building was then only two stories, and as the town prospered it became necessary to have a town tavern, and the rooms upstairs were initiated into the hotel business, long before the Civil War.

From that early period until a few weeks ago, the building had housed a hotel, and in its earlier days was among the best for the traveling public. The "drummers" who made this territory were always glad of the opportunity to stay over night with "Uncle" Joe.

"Uncle" Joe was characterized as a "straight jacketed Presbyterian," and would not permit any gambling or drinking in his tavern. In after years the hotel fell into hands other than the Presbyterian type of a citizen and if some of the more recent "residents" would think back a few years, they would no doubt recall the big games and carousing that took place in "Uncle" Joe's one-time well regulated tavern.

Uncle Joe did a flourishing business and in 1869, after the war, the hotel would not accommodate the business, and extensive remodeling was done. The front part of the building was torn down and it was built three full floors and an additional half story, with the rear end left unchanged from the time it was built.

The bricks for the most part in the new addition were laid in place by William Bainbridge of this city, and the original building was erected by his father.

Joseph Hamilton was born January 3, 1803, in Ireland and came to America in 1821. His wife also was a native of Ireland. He died soon after the building had been remodeled, on October 26, 1872. It is understood that he has a daughter living in Indianapolis. He and his wife are buried in East Hill cemetery.

After his death, the widow conducted the business for a time, but sold out and many changes were made in later years, with the general store giving away entirely to the hotel and eating house business, with the usual saloon and livery stable in connection.

A notorious gambling place was said to have existed for years in the hotel, with many big games lasting for days, taking place. Even when workmen were wrecking the building a few weeks ago, they would stop and pick up the small pieces of paper, thinking possible that a hundred dollar bill might have been carelessly discarded by some gambler in those olden days.

The hotel was last acquired in the early '90s by the late Pleasant A. Miller, who with his wife conducted a successful business, with a restaurant and dining room that could not be excelled. In more recent years Mr. Miller had retired from the hotel business and had leased the upstairs rooms for that purpose, and the down stairs lobby and dining room gave way to the growth of modern business—an automobile tire shop. The tire shop was a forerunner of the downfall of the building, because the modern age with the automobiles never permits a small thing like a hotel to stand in the way of a gasoline filling station.

First, the livery stable connected with the hotel, went out of business on account of automobiles, and this portion of the building was torn down several years ago.

Then prohibition dealt a death blow to the "high" life that had been so characteristic of the old tavern. The business had succumbed to the gasoline age.

JOSEPH HALL, 90 YEARS OLD, DIES AT MILROY

Was Probably Oldest Resident of
Anderson Township—Lived in
Same Place 73 Years

APOPLEXY IS CAUSE OF DEATH

Joseph Hall, probably the oldest resident of Anderson township, died Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock at his home north of Milroy, death being caused from a stroke of apoplexy.

The deceased was 90 years of age, and was born in Cincinnati. When 17 years of age he moved to this county and had resided on the farm north of Milroy since that time. He was a farmer by occupation.

He suffered the stroke only a few hours before his death, and the family and friends were greatly shocked by his sudden death.

He is survived by five children, Mrs. B. L. Foster of Rushville, Mrs. J. H. Pike of Richland township, Mrs. Chris King of near Milroy, Will Hall of north of Milroy and Miss Effie Hall, who lived at home.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at two o'clock at the late residence in charge of the Rev. Guy Hamilton of Milroy, and interment will be made in the Milroy cemetery.

TO PROBE BRIBE REPORTS

Committee Named to Investigate
Metamora Case

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 22.—The state department of public instruction today announced appointment of a committee to investigate alleged payment of bribes to A. M. Hannebaum, former trustee of Metamora, Franklin county, by two teachers in return for teaching contracts.

The committee is composed of L. N. Hines, president of the Indiana state normal, Clifford Funderburg, Huntington; and Mrs. Richard Edwards, Peru.

Acceptance of bribes by Hannebaum was exposed in a report of the state board of accounts.

MILROY MAN FINED

Albert May of Milroy was arrested Friday night in that place by Clyde Kitchen, captain of the Horse Thief Detective association, and placed in jail on a charge of intoxication. He was arraigned this morning before Justice Stech and pleaded guilty, receiving a fine of $1 and costs, which he paid.

UNION SERVICES AT NIGHT

Thanksgiving Sermon at First Pres-
byterian Church Thursday

The usual union Thanksgiving services will be held by the Protestant churches of Rushville next Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock, at the First Presbyterian church, and the sermon will be delivered by the Rev. John T. Scull, Jr., superintendent of the Connersville district, Methodist Episcopal church.

This will be the first opportunity the people of Rushville have had to hear the district superintendent, who succeeded the Rev. John M. Walker in September, and it is expected that he will be given a large hearing.

Thanksgiving union services were formerly held on the morning of Thanksgiving day, but last year they were changed to evening. This year the same plan will be followed.

DINNERS CHEAPER ON THANKSGIVING

Rushville People Will Find Prices
for Thanksgiving Day Meal a Little Lower

AVERAGE MEAL AT $4.00

Canvass of Merchants Shows Turkeys Less, But of a Poor Quality
—Chickens Plentiful

The Thanksgiving Day meal for next Thursday, should cost the people of Rushville less money, than it has for the past few years, according to an inquiry made today of local merchants. A meal with turkey and all of the "trimmings" for six persons should not cost over $4.

Although the price of turkeys this year is lower than last year, there still remains the scarcity that has existed for several years around here, and the quality of the meat is not as good as it should be on account of the excessive dry summer, according to Walter Thomas of the Adams Produce company.

The local commission firm has received some turkeys for shipment, but the supply is below normal. The prevailing prices today were 38 cents a pound for New York dressed, or about 33 cents a pound on foot.

Those who are looking for the "next best" in turkey will find hens at 26 cents a pound and chickens at 25 cents on foot, while ducks were quoted today at 20 cents.

Rushville stores were preparing today to handle big quantities of chickens and ducks for the Thanksgiving Day trade, and of course the merchants in that line also were prepared to take orders for the gobblers.

Farmers in Rush county do not devote much attention to the raising of turkeys, and because of the vast amount of trouble that is necessary to raise a flock of them, most of those that are placed on the local market come from other places.

The hills of Franklin county raise many turkeys, because the farmers in many instances are not as busy with crops as they are here, and the local produce firm receives many turkeys from this section. Those that can be spared are shipped to the east, according to Mr. Thomas, and only a limited number is kept on hands to meet the local needs.

In a canvass of the local stores, prices were obtained on the probable cost of a meal for Thanksgiving Day and the essentials of an average meal, for six persons, figures up as follows:

Turkey, 7 pounds	$2.65
Oysters, pint	.35
Cranberries pound	.15
Celery, bunch	.10
Sweet potatoes	.15
Pumpkin, can	.15
Bread, coffee, etc.	.45

Total $4.00
If chicken or duck is substituted for turkey, the cost will be materially reduced.

OPENS UP WAY TO ERECT MONUMENT

Dismissal of Law Suit Leaves Ira
W. Ayres Will Trustees Free to Proceed With Shaft

TO HONOR GEN. HACKLEMAN

Plan For Monument in Memory of
Only Indiana General Killed in
Civil War Can go on

Plans for the erection of a monument in honor of General P. A. Hackleman, the only Indiana Civil War General killed in action, will go forward soon, following the dismissal of a law suit this week in court against the expenditure of the money left for that purpose by the late Ira W. Ayres.

Mr. Ayres at his death left a will, bequeathing a sum of money that was to be placed in a bank to draw compound interest until it had reached a sum large enough to permit the erection of the shaft for that purpose.

The sum of money now available is nearly $5,000, and a board of trustees, headed by A. L. Gary, local attorney, was appointed by the terms of the will to carry out the plans of the deceased. The will was contested by his widow and the matter has been held up in court for two years, but the action was dismissed this week.

The county board of commissioners has long since granted permission to erect the monument in the northwest corner of the court house yard, and the trustees have also contracted with Myra Richards, a sculptress of Indianapolis, for $4,000 for the completion of the large bust of the late General Hackleman.

Miss Richards has made several trips here in recent months, and her part of the work of making the die for the final cast, has been completed, and she has been waiting on the action of the court case, before proceeding with the expensive part of the monument.

It will be necessary to expend the rest of the money for a base and for the purpose of completing the job of placing the shaft in position.

The board of trustees for the monument project have not made any definite plans of proceeding, but will probably wait until spring before beginning actual operations.

SHARK'S BITE FATAL TO CARTHAGE YOUNG MAN

Russell Winslow, 33, Dies Friday in San Juan, Porto Rico, From Effects of Being Bitten

TEACHING IN THE UNIVERSITY

Russell Winslow, age thirty-three years, former Carthage young man, died Friday afternoon in the Presbyterian hospital in San Juan, Porto Rico, according to a message received this morning by his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Charles S. Winslow, living southwest of Carthage.

His death was due to the effects of being bitten by a shark while in swimming. It is not known when he was attacked by a shark, as his parents had no information that he was ill until the death message arrived.

Mr. Winslow was head of the chemistry department of the University of Porto Rico at San Pedro, and had been in the position only three months. His wife, who survives, is head of the music department of Guilford college, in North Carolina.

Besides the parents and widow, the deceased is survived by four brothers, Ralph, Howard and Donald of Carthage and Ray of Indianapolis, and one sister, Mrs. E. H. Doherty of Chicago. The body will be brought to the home of the parents for funeral services and burial.

The Rev. Mr. Winslow is a minister in the Friends church, although he holds no regular charge, and is also president of the Gwynneville bank.

TO BE LAID TO REST MONDAY
Marion, Ohio, Nov. 22.—The body of Mrs. Florence Kline Harding will be laid away beside the body of the late president, in a vault in the Marion cemetery, pending completion of the Harding Memorial, Monday afternoon.

Stone and Gravel Roads Expected To Survive Winter Without Breaks

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 22—Belief that stone and gravel roads in the state highway system will not be to a degree to worry traffic during the winter freezes and next spring thaws, was expressed by John D. Williams, director, in the commission's traffic bulletin today.

This is due, Mr. Williams explained, to the great volume of work accomplished the past summer at spreading material, and to the fact that roads go into the winter perfectly dry. He recalled that last fall there were many heavy rains and that roads were soaked when freezing weather arrived. He was optimistic in the belief that state gravel and stone roads will go through this winter with practically no breaks in the road beds.

Following its policy to remove practically all detours on the system this winter, the bulletin announced removal of a detour between Perry and Sellersburg on No. 1; at a bridge a mile north of Montpelier on No. 13, and four run-arounds at bridge work now completed on No. 17 between Kendallville and Ligonier and just east of Waterloo.

Williams also announced that new pavement is now in use on No. 16 between Little Pigeon Creek and Gentryville, and that traffic is using new pavement for nearly two miles north of Hazelton on No. 10.

Surface conditions, detours, run-arounds, etc., on the system for the week of November 21-28 are as follows:

No. 1—Pavement in use from Indianapolis to a point 14 miles north of Kokomo, with a detour at bridge 7 miles north of Kokomo. Closed from Neads' Corner to Peru, detour marked. South of Indianapolis detour via Dudleytown between Seymour and Crothersville account construction.

No. 4—One mile of earth road between Dugger and Linton; detour over county road through Dugger in wet weather. Run-around at Busserson Creek 3 miles east of Sullivan, soft in rainy weather. Detour just west of Seymour account bridge construction.

No. 5—Construction between Logansport and West Baden, detour over State Roads 41 and 22.

No. 6—Pavement open between New Bethel and Shelbyville with one short detour between Northwest of Indianapolis; use pavement to 3.7 miles north of Lebanon, thence on short detour back to pavement. Detour 6-miles north of Lebanon to west through Thornstown returning to No. 6 at 3 miles north of Thornstown.

No. 7—Closed for about 5 miles west of Peru (portion overlapping No. 1 being paved) detour marked.

No. 10—Closed from Evansville north 1 mile account paving on each side of Little Pigeon Creek bridge. Detour marked, probably open Nov. 20. Closed between Princeton and Hazelton. Traffic can use White river bridge. Closed at 4 miles north of Veedersburg account paving, detour to east, returning to No. 10 at 7 miles south of Attica Bridge out 1 mile north of Marshall; detour is fair. Detour west at Attica through Williamsport account Wabash railroad bridge crossing. Detour east at 1 mile north of Carbondale account bridge construction.

No. 11—Roadside run-around at bridge out at 1 mile north of Road 17.

No. 12—Drive slow because of grading new fill at Fish Creek 4 miles south of Freedom.

No. 13—Detour around bridge construction just south of Bluffton. Roadside run-arounds at bridge projects between Ossian and Bluffton.

No. 14—Earth road from Leopold Junction to St. Croix is soft in wet weather.

No. 16—Use new pavement from Little Pigeon Creek to Gentryville. Detour over earth road at overhead railroad crossing project at Lincoln City. (New location not passable between Lincoln City and a point 4 miles west of St. Meinrad. Traffic between St. Meinrad and Dale use county gravel road. Construction between St. Meinrad and Leavenworth. (Avoid) Watch for blasting at wash-out 3 miles west of New Albany.

No. 22—Pavement between Indianapolis and Martinsville being used by traffic using three detours around bridge construction. South detour, north of Waverly, very narrow and dangerous. However, the majority of thru traffic continues using No. 12 in order not to lose time on detours. Construction south of Paoli should be avoided if possible. Run-around at bridge project south of Harrodsburg.

No. 24—New grade completed between Palmyra and Salem. Go via Fredericksburg or Martinsburg in wet weather. (New Albany and Louisville traffic go via Pekin and Martinsburg coming out on Road 5 at Greenville in wet weather.)

No. 25—New pavement open from Lagrange to Middlebury. Run-around at bridge construction 8 miles east of Angola.

No. 26—Short detour 2 miles southeast of Columbus open first week in December.

No. 27—Detour only fair around bridge out over Elkhart river 3 miles south of Goshen.

No. 28—Earth road between Sandy Hook and Rodgers; ferry at White river. Drive carefully at dangerous hill south of Newberry.

No. 32—Roadside run-around at one bridge between Spencer and Greencastle. Road closed 2 miles north of Fincastrale. Run-around at bridge construction at Romney.

No. 33—Side detour account bridge construction between Veedersburg and Covington.

No. 39—Bridge run-around at foot of Bulltown Hill near Laurel.

No. 41—Being rebuilt as stone road. Traffic use new grade over Willow Valley hill except in wet weather, then use the old road.

Questions To Be Answered At St. Paul's M. E. Church

The last sermon in the popular series on "The Girl of Today" will be delivered Sunday evening at the St. Paul's church. The topic will be "The King's Daughter." In the prelude to the sermon the following questions will be answered.

Can a man who refused to forgive enter Heaven?

What is the meaning of the number 666 in the Book of Revelation?

Is it right to arrest men for playing poker when mothers and daughters play for prizes in their homes?

If the shoemaker sticks to his last ought not the preacher stick to his Bible, leaving politics to the politicians, business to the business men, society to society people, etc.?

Do you believe in hell? If so how would you teach that doctrine to a Sunday school class of boys?

Kingdom is Within:—Neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold the kingdom of God is within you. Luke 17: 21.

Prayer:—May we this day enthrone Thee, O God, most Merciful and Mighty, supreme in our lives that the Kingdom of God may be in us and abound.

Successful Negroes

Not long ago the entire white population in a small Georgia town turned out to honor the funeral of an old negro preacher who had endeared himself to the community by a life of unselfish service. That is one way that a black man, like a man of any other hue, can achieve recognition.

Material success is another way, sometimes still more effective. White men may not love a black man because he makes money, but it makes them respect him. This truth appears clearly in the case of the late Uncle Tom Mason, who rose from slavery to become the president of a prosperous bank in Fort Worth, Tex., and when he died the other day, left an estate worth a quarter of a million dollars.

There was a similar example recently in another southern city, when public attention was called to the career of a negro who had long owned and operated a prosperous hotel for white patrons. He had never put himself forward but had always given first-class service and taken a very useful part in the life of the community, and was appreciated accordingly.

This is along the line advocated strongly by Booker T. Washington. He always advised negroes to save money and acquire property. Then, he said, they would respect themselves and others would respect them.

More Shoes Worn

"In the cities and smaller towns," writes a business reviewer, "the demand for staple goods is about normal, but no exigent, and luxuries and gew-gaws are neglected. The shoe industry is better, probably because people are riding less and walking more, and is the only line in which a distinct improvement is reported."

Attention is invited particularly to that last sentence. If it is really true that people once more are wearing out shoe leather faster than automobile tires, it is a remarkable reversal of the situation. And without any animus against the automobile, it may be said also that the change represents a notable gain in thrift and health, however temporary it may prove to be.

Let people buy and use motor cars by all means. They justify themselves to the great majority of buyers, in many ways. But any recurrence or continuance of the good old bipedal method of locomotion, latterly in danger of growing obsolete, is just so much to the good.

A Year Without a Summer

Farmers are warned by the long-distance forecasters that the winter of 1926-27 may duplicate the experience of 1816, which history records as a "year without a summer" when no crops were raised north of the Mason and Dixon line.

They also tell us that this winter is to be a period of low temperatures and that we should prepare for several weeks of extremely cold weather.

The weather man is in a position to become the director of our industrial activities, according to the Gas

Age-Record, because he can predict the fuel requirements of the nation as far as two or three years in advance.

In the same way, he could regulate our crops, if farmers had dependence in him, but they lose faith when they read in the paper, "fair and moderate temperature tomorrow", and wake up to find the temperature below freezing and snow covering the ground.

A Perfect Gentleman

Lightning is a perfect gentleman, according to scientists, and will never strike a man when he's down. In a storm, persons lying flat on the ground are reasonably certain to escape death.

The possibilities are, experts estimate, that one standing directly under a storm cloud would be hit fifteen times in one hundred strokes, while one on the ground would be struck only once in a hundred strokes.

Lightning may observe Marquis of Queensbury rules but, as with matrimony, being struck once is sufficient for a lifetime, providing that the victim is able to survive the first shock.

What had the appearance of being a big fire was caused by a cow knocking a lantern over and setting a small shed on fire on the back end of the lot owned by Miss Alice Norris in North Sexton street last night. The work of several men in that neighborhood together with the fire department confined the fire to that one building. C. W. Hinkle, the elevator man, lives in the property to which the cow shed belonged. His son had been feeding the cow about five o'clock and left the lantern in the barn. It is supposed the cow knocked the lantern down and set the hay and straw in the barn on fire.

HUNT'S DAILY LETTER

BY HARRY E. HUNT

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 22.—The Washington navy yard is the scene of an old-world "happening" which has attracted an object of interest to an object of interest. The object of interest is a man who has been in the navy yard for a long time. The object of interest is a man who has been in the navy yard for a long time.

For the first time in the history of the navy yard, a man has been in the navy yard for a long time. The object of interest is a man who has been in the navy yard for a long time.

SCIENTIFIC study of the soul has been attempted by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, chief anthropologist of the Smithsonian Institution. The object of interest is a man who has been in the navy yard for a long time.

THOSE who have loved and lost, says Hrdlicka, "know the soul exists. It has been a faith beyond science. But when we come to actual knowledge of it, there is little to be said. It is impossible to discover any definite thing about it. It is a thing which is beyond the reach of science. It is a thing which is beyond the reach of science.

It is a thing which is beyond the reach of science. It is a thing which is beyond the reach of science. It is a thing which is beyond the reach of science.

A sawmill stood where the Pinnell-Tompkins Lumber company is now located, and was abandoned because of frequent high water.

Jim Dixon ran an elevator on the site where Harry Kramers packing house stands, and it was later used for a livery stable which burned down.

There was a livery stable where the Daily Republican building is now located.

Dave Small ran a book store in a little one-story building where Johnson's drug store is.

Dave Mason had a candy store on the site of the present Ninety-Nine Cent store.

Oliver Conde had a meat shop in a one-story frame building where Casady's dry goods store now stands.

William Carr ran a harness shop in a small wooden building that stood on the north half of the site occupied by the American National bank.

Jake Block had a clothing store on the northwest corner of what is now Main and Second streets.

The Lakin grocery store stood where Frank Wilson's clothing store is now located.

"Prof." Brown had a barber shop in a little frame building situated where the rear entrance to the American National bank building now is.

Theodore Abercrombie's tailor shop was in the room now used by the Dixon millinery store.

Richmond Beatty had a two-wheel dray, which tipped backwards and made loading and unloading easy.

The J. M. & I. depot stood west of the building now used by A. L. Stewart and son in the manufacture of farm implements.

Jim Glone ran a restaurant where Polk's hardware store is now located.

Joe Hamilton had a general store in what was then a one-story frame building on the site of the Grand hotel that was lately torn down.

The circus grounds were situated where Dr. Frank Green's residence now stands at the corner of Perkins and Third streets.

Mrs. Hudilesen ran an orphan's home at the corner of Third and Julian streets where the Jim Brown property is now located.

The first Catholic church in Rushville stood where the city water and light plant is now. It was moved to Buena Vista Avenue and Third streets and is now used by John P. Frazee and Son as an office building.

The first opera house, called the Mauzy opera house, was in the Old Fellows building, which burned last January.

Woolen mills stood between Morgan and Harrison streets along the river bank, where Clore's feed barn is now located.

Abe Bowen had a planing mill where the Mauzy company's building is now located.

The postoffice was in a small building in the yard of the property now owned by Mrs. Cora W. Dillon.

Moore's flour mill stood just east of the city water and light plant, which is now the site of an elevator.

The Old Timer editor made an appeal last Saturday for information about changes that have taken place in Rushville and all of the above was supplied by Norma Conde. John F. Joyce has contributed a number of interesting items, which will be printed next Saturday. Others who have something of this character in mind are requested to mail it to the Old Timer Editor, care of The Daily Republican.

SPICE-LAND BOYS LACKING GINGER

Lions Pass the Ball Like Lightning
and Hit the Basket With Great
Accuracy

SECOND STRING MEN PUT IN

Held Visitors Last Four Minutes of
First Half, But Spiceland Breaks
Through Second Half

The Rushville high school basketball team continued their onward attack on the basket, when they trounced the Spiceland high school here Friday night, by the top heavy score of 66 to 25, permitting Spiceland to catch up with them in the last half in order to make the game more interesting.

The Lions displayed a game of passing and goal shooting that has never been equalled in past seasons by a Rushville squad, and more improvement is seen in each game.

The boys from the Land of Spice were fast enough, but they lacked the necessary amount of ginger to put across a victory and they could not get any place when Rushville would tighten their defense.

The Lions ran the score up, 27 to 7, in the first half, and then substituted an entire new team, and in the last four minutes of play in the first half the visitors were held without scoring.

In the second half the same five new players were given places and they played for ten minutes, but Spiceland managed to break through for goals, and almost evened up with the locals, much to the delight of the spectators who wanted to force the regulars in order to win the game in a final sprint.

With the score 31 to 20, the regular five men went back in, and the Lions showed the same old fight and while they ran the score up to 66, the visitors could only manage to make five points, which gave them 25 all together.

Rushville started off in the game at a fast clip, scoring first from the field, then twice on fouls and again from the field, making six points before Spiceland got started. The score at the end of the first seven minutes was 9 to 2, and Spiceland called time out to look over the situation.

But with Lakin hitting a fast stride at the pivot position, he acted as a feeder for Newbold, Wainwright and McNamara, and the ball appeared to be educated as it was passed swiftly from player to player around the basket. The team work was excellent and showed a marked improvement over former games.

The basket shooting of the Rushville team surpasses any of years gone by. All team players have an eye for the net, and there is no individual point getter as each Lion contributes his share.

Miller at back guard is playing a game similar to the style of Havie Frazee who held down that post for several years, and when Miller is relieved by Reade, it shows that Coach Swain has broken in two men for the post that can be depended upon.

Newbold is showing more improvement in each game, and follows the ball up under the basket with the Em Headle style that has broken up many games. Lakin has shown up in the last two games, playing like a veteran center, and not only does he get the tip-off, but he also knows where the basket is located.

There is McNamara at floor guard

who this year is hitting his stride and playing the game from all angles just twice as good as he did in the past seasons, and that means a great deal because Mac always was a player that set the fast pace for the team.

Arbuckle and Wainwright are usually running mates with Newbold at forward, and these two members who graduated from last year's second team, are showing more improvement with each game, and have about won for themselves regular berths on the team. These two players are excellent on the under the basket shots, and Arbuckle especially has a fancy for hitting the basket from the side angles.

The team will now buckle down for the rest of the season, as most of the easy teams have been played, and Coach Swain will now point the squad for the games next week, when Shelbyville plays here Wednesday night, and Newcastle follows on Friday night.

The lineup and summary:
Rushville 66 Spiceland 25
Wainwright F E. Sorrel
Newbold F Fausett
Lakin C Wright
McNamara G Franklin
Miller G L. Sorrel
Substitutions, Rushville, Arbuckle, Cherry, Caldwell, Elliott, Reade, Spiceland, Kirk, Coffin, Mason. Field goals, Arbuckle 5, Wainwright 2, Newbold 8, Lakin 6, McNamara 7, Miller, E. Sorrel 5, Kirk 2, Wright 2, L. Sorrel. Foul goals, Arbuckle 2, Wainwright 2, Newbold 2, McNamara 2, E. Sorrel 3, Coffin, Mason. Referee Miller, umpire Best.

The Rushville second team managed to get through with their game against Orange with a 9 point victory, 34 to 25. The Orange team put up a hard fight and in the first half the score was 15 to 14, in favor of Rushville. In the last half, the local team began to hit their stride and gradually walked off from the Orange tossers. The lineup and summary:
R. H. S. Seconds 34 Orange 25
Caldwell F Phillips
W. Newbold F Pyke
R. Winkler C McGraw
L. Winkler G Bryant
Cartmel G Friend
Substitutions, Rushville, Cortner, Orange, Fields. Field goals, Newbold 4, R. Winkler 4, L. Winkler 2, Cartmel 3, Phillips 3, Pyke 4. Foul goals, Caldwell 3, Newbold 4, L. Winkler, Phillips 7, Pyke 2, McGraw, Fields. Referee Titsworth.

CURTAIN DOWN ON INDIANA SEASON

Last Act of 1924 Hoosier Football
Drama Played Today When Old
Rivals Meet

INDIANA AT LAFAYETTE

Wabash and DePauw Have It Out at
Greencastle—Easy Win Foreseen
For Notre Dame

(By United Press)

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 22.—The last act of the 1924 Hoosier college football drama was played today. The curtain went down as bitter rivals met in bitter rivalry argued to have the last word.

The bitterest of all bitter rivals were Indiana and Purdue which met at Lafayette for the state championship—outside of Notre Dame.

Wabash and DePauw met to have it out at Greencastle.

The struggle for the year was just as good as over for Notre Dame when they got rid of their two-year nemesis in defeating Nebraska last week. About the only argument about the game between the Irish and Northwestern game at Chicago today was whether the Purple would hold their opponents to as low a score as did Nebraska.

Northwestern fans pointed out that they held the heavy Chicago lines from scoring a touchdown and that they can stop the Irish. The Purple team also is said to be in better condition than it was when it met the Maroons.

Northwestern has showed more speed this year than it ever had in the past.

Dopesters were expecting Purdue to come out on top in the game with Indiana. Attention of football fans was centered on this game today. Out of 24 games played by two teams since 1892 Purdue had won 12 and Indiana 9. Three of the scores were tied. Purdue has lost to Indiana the past four years but has a better record than the crimson during the season. Chicago won from Indiana by 23 points while it defeated Purdue by only 13. Northwestern defeated Indiana by 10 points while the Boilermakers were victorious over Northwestern by seven points.

The score of both Hoosier Tens were 21 to 7 in defeating Wabash. The Boilermakers defeated DePauw 36 to 0 while the Crimson defeated Wabash by 21 to 0. Indiana was the victor in the game with Ohio State while Purdue was the vanquished. It also won from Rose Poly with a higher score than did Purdue but it has defeat delivered by Louisiana that it cannot wipe from its record.

The Boilermakers were on the lookout from Salmi, Slat and Lober, the best of the Crimson ball-carriers and were prepared for them. The team has had two weeks to rest and have had time to let their men recover from injuries. Captain Claypool was still in a partially disabled condition and was not expected to be put into the game.

Wabash stacked up with a record for the season of 75 points ahead of DePauw, and according to dopesters, had a better chance of winning that the latter team. The Tigers have lost all but one game while the little giants have won three. DePauw, however, has been getting better each week and promised a few surprises.

The Haskell Indians after a two weeks rest were in splendid condition when they met Butler on Irvin field here. Levi and Captain Carpenter were out with injuries, however every man on the Bull Dog team was in good condition but it was indicated Hal Griggs, who has just recovered from injuries would not be used.

Substitutions, Arlington, Becker, Bundy and Kennedy. Webb, Morgan and Geise. Field goals, Kempe 3, Reade 5, Price 1, Bundy 1, Kennedy 4, Myers, Morgan 2, Geise. Foul goals, Kempe 2, Reade 2, Price, Kennedy 2, Hurst, Myers 3.

GAME ON A NEUTRAL FLOOR

Carthage and Manilla to Play at
Arlington Tonight

The Carthage and Manilla high school basketball teams will meet tonight on a neutral floor in Arlington for their game, which was postponed from the Manilla floor last night. These two teams are bitter rivals, and it is expected that a large crowd will witness the game tonight.

Raleigh was without a regular scheduled game last night, and the alumni made up a team that played them, and the high school won out by a dozen points.

DIVIDE HONORS AT NEW SALEM

New Salem and Center Teams Both
Win Friday Night

The New Salem and Center high school basketball teams divided honors Friday night in games played at New Salem, and each contest was close, with the winner in doubt until the final shot.

In the big game of the evening, the Center boys downed the New Salem boys, 20 to 14, and this game was fast and exciting, with both teams playing on about even terms.

In the preliminary game, the New Salem girls had a narrow escape from defeat by the Center girls, but they managed to win out by two points, 22 to 20.

Pacific Coast Draw Boxers

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 22.—Restoration of boxing in California by the passage of an amendment making the sport legal after a long period of "four-round" amusement is sure to make conditions better for the boxer but it may play havoc with the sport in the East.

That is nothing to complain about, however. California has an inherent right to the big boxing that has been confined to the east coast since the boxers ruined their own business and brought about the era of four-round bouts on the coast.

Perhaps it is all for the best, however, as the East seems to have tired of boxing and it is reasonable to assume that California will be interested in seeing some of the big bouts that failed to get a tumble in the East.

There are several reasons for the slump of interest in boxing around New York. Tex Rickard, who has been hard hit by the slack trade, blames "fighters who won't fight" for their business depression. Perhaps the failure of Rickard and other promoters to arrange attractive matches caused the New York sportsmen to turn to other sports for their amusement.

One fine match was arranged for last summer and it fell through. It was one of those "naturals" that needed no ballyhoo or exploiting to put over but it didn't go over. It was the Walker-Leonard match for the welterweight championship. Leonard was generally accused of running out of the hatch on the pretext of a broken hand, but the wise boys around Broadway claim that the ticket sale was a bust and that some other reason had to be found to call off the fight. The promoters hardly could have added to the burden of commercialism handicapping the sport by admitting that they couldn't make enough money out of the card.

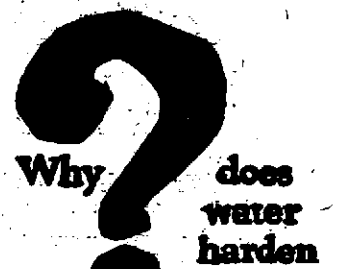

Things have happened since then that would indicate a desire on the part of the principals to create more interest in the contest. Walker and Leonard have been saying all kinds of nasty things about each other and they are reported to have been stopped by friends from engaging in a free-for-all on Broadway when they met one night recently.

It is still a natural match and the criticism that Leonard has seen fit to accept without protest is not hurting future prospects for the match. As Leo Flynn and Jimmy Johnston, an astute manager and a smart promoter, say:

"I don't care what you say about me as long as you say something and keep me in print."

Walker is in very bad with the New York Boxing Commission, for no good reason, and Leonard is causing the commissioners to lose patience with him.

Perhaps this match can be arranged by California promoters.

SPECIAL PROGRAM FOR SUNDAY NIGHT

Selections by Choir and Thanksgiving Message by Pastor Announced For 1st Presbyterian

WOMAN TO SPEAK AT 10:30

The First Presbyterian church, Sunday night, will have as a special feature a Thanksgiving program, consisting of a half hour musical program by the choir and singing of Thanksgiving songs by the congregation.

The pastor, the Rev. Gibson Wilson, will give a brief message on the subject, "The Goodness of God."

The speaker at the morning service is Miss Emma Donnell of Greensburg. She has recently returned from an oriental trip in which she visited many of the mission fields and has an interesting message to present.

"The day is to be one of real Thanksgiving in the church," says an announcement by the pastor. All people who are grateful to Almighty God for all his benefits are invited to be present and thank him in their worship.

The greatest discovery in the world that was ever made, was the discovery of being thankful. We do not know who was the first to make this great find, but each person will be happier if he makes the discovery for himself. This church can help you make the great find and you can add to the world's store of happiness.

NOTED EDUCATORS WILL SPEAK HERE

section. Every superintendent in the district is urged to have some school patron here for the meeting.

Miss Carina C. Warrington of Fort Wayne, an official of the Indiana Probation Officers organization, will speak before the attendance officers section on the subject, "Delinquent and Dependent Children," and Miss Blanch Merry of Indianapolis, state attendance officer, will lead the discussion.

H. C. McComb of Indianapolis, state supervisor of industrial education, will speak before the practical arts section for men. His theme will be "A State Course of Study for Industrial Arts in the Secondary Schools."

Subjects in other sections have been assigned to teachers of the district.

The general session will open in the morning with devotional exercises and invocation by the Rev. Gibson Wilson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and the address of welcome will be delivered by Roy E. Harrold, president of the Rushville Rotary club. The morning program will close with Dr. Bryan's address.

There will be a musical prelude to the afternoon general sessions, opening at 1:30, by the high school girls' glee club, directed by David S. McIntosh, supervisor of music in the Rushville schools. Reports of the secretary-treasurer and the nominating committee for next year will be heard, and following the second address by Dr. Bryan, the meeting will close with the report of the resolutions committee.

Shelbyville—George Yaring, Shelby county farmer, has joined the gold medal class by raising 116 bushels of corn to the acre.

MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST

LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR

Gaetano D. Donizetti, (1797-1848)

Born in Bergamo, Italy

Gaetano Donizetti was the grandson of a Scotchman whose name was Izetti who was captured by the French and later lived in Italy. Donizetti's parents neither had any musical inclination, but he had a brother who became the leader of the city band and another who was a tailor. Donizetti succeeded in inducing his parents to send him to a school of music in Bergamo by Simon Mayer who was a practical and serious teacher, and Donizetti made rapid progress under him, especially in singing and violin-playing.

As an officer in a regiment quartered at Naples he became popular because of his agreeable personality and his great musical talent. Here he met a manager who gave him the opportunity to write an opera in the year of 1819 which gave him a start with the public. His work made so strong an impression that he was released from the military service to devote himself to a composer's career. He proceeded to compose with extraordinary rapidity and being poor he had to work in haste. He was accurate in putting down ideas and seldom made corrections.

In 1832 a manager of a theatre in Milan found that the composer engaged to provide the opera failed to fulfill the contract, so in despair he went to Donizetti who came to his rescue and produced an opera which was the greatest success of the season.

Donizetti's operas, in his later years, were performed all over Europe and even in Constantinople and Calcutta. But he was overtaxing mind and body, and was one day found on his bedroom floor unconscious from over-work and over-play. From that time dated an increasing paralysis of muscle and brain. He died in his brother's arms on the 8th of April 1848.

SEXTETTE FROM LUCIA

Donizetti's most popular opera is "Lucia di Lammermoor." The plot is founded on Sir Walter Scott's novel, "The Bride of Lammermoor." The celebrated sextette, which occurs in the second act, is one of the best known numbers from any opera. It is more than a remarkable concerted number; it is also so well fitted to the scene in which it occurs that even the critics of Donizetti have been compelled to admit its extreme beauty and dramatic power. "Edgar," the lover of "Lucy," enters the room unexpectedly just after "Lucy" had been inveigled into signing the marriage contract with "Lord Arthur." After looking silently from one to the other of those assembled in the room, he finally draws his sword and confronting his enemy, "Sir Henry" (Lucy's brother) demands an explanation. The contrasting emotions of the characters are skillfully woven into the music as each takes up his portion of the song.

After a short introduction the sextette opens with a duet between "Edgar" and "Sir Henry" then the other characters enter until all are singing. The composition abounds in intense moments and in climaxes. To appreciate the composition fully the characters should be known as they enter this powerful dramatic scene.

GINGS SCHOOL

BASKETBALL

Ging has added another victory to her bit. Friday night, Nov. 14 the Ging team played New Salem and defeated them 25 to 16. The game proved to be a hard fought one but Ging was able to secure a lead and maintain it throughout the game. The first half ended with the score 15 to 8 in favor of Ging, the final score being 25 to 16 in our favor:

EDUCATIONAL NIGHT

Educational week was observed at Ging school Wednesday night. Mr. Farthing was present and delivered the main address of the evening. Music was also furnished by the pupils for a part of the observance and other short speeches were given.

MORE BASKETBALL

Ging has no game scheduled for this week as yet, and probably will be unable to do so. However, we go to Arlington November 26 and hope to play such a game as shall keep us in our present position among the schools of the county in the basketball summary. Our percentage is .500, three won and three lost. That puts us in the first division, we believe, among the five or six best in the county, a position not to be sneezed at when one considers that Arlington, Carthage, Moscow, Manilla and Milroy are in the same division. Watch our standing grow. Six hundred by Christmas. Four games to go. Figure it out.

EIGHTH GRADE

The Eighth grade has been working hard this semester but feels that it will not be so hard for a few weeks for they have completed their study of arithmetic and physiology and progressing very rapidly in their remaining studies. They have had reviews the past week in their completed subjects, preparing them for examinations.

The Cicero class has completed the second oration and has composition every Friday. The past few days have been in review of the first two orations, constructions and figures of speech.

The Sophomore and Junior English classes are now studying "Pride and Prejudice" as a classic, having previously taken "Silas Marner." These same classes have completed the study of feudalism and are now taking the crusades.

ARLINGTON

ARLINGTON

The patrons of Posey Township filled the Christian church at Arlington Thursday evening when the Education Week program was given. About 170 pupils of the school participated in the exercises which included group singing music by the children's band, and the high school orchestra. Judge Sparks of Rushville gave the address. His subject for the evening was "Illiteracy." He cited from his own experience as judge of the court, numerous cases of shame, disgrace, and heart breaking from "not knowing illiteracy." He emphasized the need for individual helpfulness in correcting those who have been a victim of environment for the woman of tomorrow. The speaker showed that an illiterate people supplies the hotbed of Socialism and that agents from Russia are pushing their teachings into schools and churches. In conclusion he emphasized the need for a well balanced system of training covering the mind and spirit. This can only come about through close cooperation between the home-church, and schools, he said. The program was generally applauded throughout.

The second Lyceum number given by the Seniors was held last Tuesday night, Nov. 18, in the Arlington gym. We were entertained by a group of gypsy songs by the girls Glee Club. The main feature of the evening was "Smiling Bob Briggs," whose program consisted of readings, chalk

HELPED HER IN EVERY WAY

So Writes Mrs. Trembley of Sharon, Vt., Concerning Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sharon, Vermont. — "I was weak and run-down, had a tired feeling and bearing-down pains. I saw an advertisement in the newspaper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began taking it. It has stopped these bearing-down pains and other bad feelings, and has helped me in every way.
